

20X Returns with Limited Risk?

Is it possible to earn a 2,000% return in a couple of years with limited risk? I think so. And, next week, I am going to show you just where I think the best opportunity to generate a 20X return lies in today's market. Circle your calendar for October 16th at 10 am Eastern Time.

I will be joining my friend Harry Dent on a webinar to discuss two stock positions that offer tremendous upside with limited downside.

And, it doesn't matter whether the market goes up, down, or sideways from here.

The stocks are ready to rock & roll.

One stock is an undiscovered gem in an industry already experiencing explosive growth. Massive tailwinds will support this industry in the coming years, including legislation favorable to operators in the space.

This particular company has the absolute best CEO to pursue its strategy. He knows the opportunity is enormous, which is why he has a ton of his own money invested in the stock. His last project yielded a 30X return in just a few years, and this current opportunity is much more significant.

The second company is a gold mine just sitting there for investors to come to grab their share of the bounty. The opportunity is in a far-flung place, but you don't need to be Indiana Jones to seize it. In fact, from what is known today, the stock has an immediate 15x upside, if not more. And, there's the potential for the mother lode, which would create a 100-bagger.

The best part is, both stocks are incredible value plays with upside growth opportunities. That's not easy to find in today's market.

It also gets better. If you're a paid subscriber to Unbounded Wealth: Max Profits, the webinar is FREE. Free as in free. No strings attached.

The models used in Unbounded Wealth: Max Profits are just that. They are models. Those models pick stocks quantitatively based on the systems I have developed over nearly a quarter of a century.

That said, I still find other opportunities outside of these models, and I wanted to share with you the two best ideas I have researched recently. I have spoken at five Harry Dent conferences and produced seven ideas, long or short. Only one stock has been a loser and fractionally at that. These stocks are, by far, the two best ideas I have ever found to present on a webinar or stage.

If you're not a paid subscriber to Unbounded Wealth: Max Profits and you're receiving the Risk-O-Meter because you tried the newsletter out, there's only a nominal fee to attend the webinar.

In addition to Harry and myself presenting, JC Parents will also present. JC is a master market technician, and he will be discussing technical analysis of the crypto markets and specific cryptocurrencies.

Keep your eyes peeled on your email box as Harry announces the details over the coming week. I have not presented to anyone in two years, and I am looking forward to it. See you then!

Now onto risk...

Risks stayed the same over the past week. There's been a lot of back and forth as the market tries to find its footing. Several times in recent weeks, the Risk-O-Meter has been an inch away from a sell signal only to back off the following week. All of the indicators remain close to triggering a sell, but they have not.

The current buy signal is historically long. It's been correct, too, as the markets have had a historic rally over the past 18 months. However, eventually, someone is going to flinch. The problem is that the farther away the market gets from normal valuation, liquidity, and sentiment levels, the more pain is inflicted on the downside.

I do want to discuss how you might want to deal with a sell signal. Initially, I had intended to discuss that this week but I have asked my programmer to arm me with a bunch of statistics to walk you through what to expect when a sell signal comes. Therefore, I'll save that for next week to give him time to fire up the programs and run all of the models.

Until then...

Happy trading!
